The President's Birthday.
Strike at Hoover Dam.
Things Happening.
Low Water in Two Places.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY PRESIDENT HOOVER celebrated his 57th birthday. Everybody in the country wishes him many happy returns, with less back-breaking responsibility and worry, greater appreciation on the part of those to whose service he devotes his time and energy.

Fortunately, he is an unusually strong man, as he needs to be, with the load that he inherited from his fortunate predecessor, Calvin Coolidge.

IT IS ONE thing to inherit a magnificent structure of prosperity, another to have it tumble around your ears the moment you enter the White House, and by no act of your own.

However, President Hoover was brought up in the school of hard knocks. He will find his way out.

NEWS FROM THE Hoover Dam strike will attract the close attention of President Hoover, the real "boss of the works."

It will want to know whether contractors that bid in competition with other contractors, assuming that the old high wage rates would prevail, are now taking advantage of the depression to cut wages.

THEY REFUSE a request for $5 a day coming from men that work in temperatures as high as 119, and demand that carpenters work for less than $6 a day. They will hear something energetic from the President of the United States, through whom they get their money.

BIDDING ON a contract before depression, on a basis that would allow a profit of so many millions, and carrying out that contract now in the depression, squeezing labor to get a few more millions of profit, will not appeal to the President.

All wage questions involved should be submitted to arbitration with the President in control of it.

PRESIDENT HOOVER will want to know particularly about the offhand discharge of 700 men that had used their last dollar to go to work on the dam project and will remind somebody that human life and hope, and a workingman's demand for justice, are at least as important as contractors' profits.

WHENEVER IT rains it pours, no matter what the kind of rain. If one price drops, another drops. A revolt breaks out in South American countries, then one must be quelled in Havana, fortunately with very few killed.

Stalin, in Russia, is discovering that human nature is human nature even when you baptise it with Karl Marx theories. He finds it necessary to give orders to discipline Russian labor, conferring greater authority on factory managers, in short, compelling workers to use their brains.

Workers do not like to do that.

In this country, we usually think of a Russian as one that likes to tuck his trousers in his boot tops, sip his vodka at leisure, and dance with his boots on. How long Russia's population will stand being driven with the ferocious energy of revolution and the five-year plan remains to be seen. They are not, like Stalin, made of steel, literally as well as by name.

IF YOU HAVE tears to shed, save some for stockbrokers.

In the whole week just past Wall street bought and sold only 4,375,819 shares of stock, and in the "happy days" when "the limit" was the giant nebula 100,000,000 light years distant, brokers sold 6,000,000 shares in one day and were expecting the "10,000,000-share day" at any moment.

Read Dante's description of Paolo and Francesca, suffering together in hell, thinking about the pleasant days gone by. That's the only way you can know how the Wall street broker feels.

The government says the water in the Mississippi has not been so low in years. The Mississippi ought to see Wall street. Ninety per cent of the water is missing there.

IN THE OPENING of cotton dealings yesterday, the price fell $7.50 a bale, discouraged by news that we have a gigantic crop. Cotton sold as low as 6.76 cents a pound.

Cotton has one price all over the world, so our gigantic crop means not only misfortune for cotton growers in the United States, but for cotton growers along the Nile, in Southern Russia, everywhere.

COL. LINDBERGH far away at Point Barrow, Alaska, where a big polar bear recently fell through the skylight of a small house onto the dining table, around which the family sat, is getting a new view of life. A sun that shines at midnight, a night that lasts for months, ice that never melts, all interesting to the young air king.

Lindbergh says the next five years will show a great increase in airplane efficiency and

"We have yet to reach a standard type."

We have indeed. That is as true as though Christopher Columbus had said it of one of his little boats.

GOOD NEWS for the enterprising city of Buffalo, N. Y. It stands first among grain ports of the United States, according to the Shipping Board reports, and is also the country's and the world's largest flour-milling center. In water-borne freight it is second only to Duluth.

Buffalo is destined to be much greater, more prosperous. Buy yourself a good corner there, while land is cheap.

Poole Company Unable to Keep Pledge; New Order Calls for 225 by Sept. 12

The long-standing argument as to whether Allegheny County's 1,100 voting machines, representing a contract for more than $1,000,000, will be delivered in time for use in the September 15 primary election was settled today.

They will not.

County Commissioners, meeting this morning, granted a time extension to the Poole Engineering and Machine Company, of Baltimore, which was awarded the contract after a bitter contest, in which vote machine advocates insisted—and rightly it now develops—that the company would be unable to deliver the machines on scheduled time.

225 BY SEPTEMBER 12

The new agreement calls for delivery of 225 machines by September 12, three days before the primary, and 15 a day thereafter. There are now 90 machines in the Commissioners' hands, and 10 more on the road here.

The agreement also forestalls action for damages under the $200,000 liquidation bond posted by the company to guarantee fulfillment of its contract.

Extension of the time limit was approved by Commissioners Armstrong and Babcock, with Commis-

HARMONY LINE QUITS AUG. 15

Permission to abandon the last leg of the Harmony interurban trolley line was granted by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today on petition of the receiver, Maurice R. Scharff, effective at midnight, August 15.

S. C. Bednar, auditor of the line, testified to a loss for June of $5,652.97 and an estimated loss for July of $4,078.50.

An attempt by R. W. Humphrey, of Ellwood City, counsel for those protesting the move, to file a demurrer, was overruled by the court. This remaining link of the route connects Pittsburgh, Evans City, Butler and Ellwood City.

A street fight began when someone threw a glass of beer at the former President.

A. C. Dinkey, Former Carnegie Steel Head, Dies in Phila. Home

Kin of Schwab Rose From Waterboy to President

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Alva Climer Dinkey, former president of the Carnegie Steel Company and president of the Midvale Company here, died today at his home in Wynnewood, a suburb, after an illness of three months. He was 65.

A brother-in-law of Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, Mr. Dinkey rose from water boy to president of the Carnegie Company at 37. He was one of the few surviving members of the Carnegie Veterans' Association, an organization of "Carnegie boys" headed by Schwab.

RETIRED IN 1915

Mr. Dinkey, who retired as head of the Carnegie Steel Company in 1915 and moved to Philadelphia, where he became president of the Midvale Steel Company, first became identified with the steel industry in Pittsburgh at the age of 13, when he secured employment with the Edgar Thomson Steel Works as water boy.

He served successively as telegraph operator, machinist, and in

Mrs. Tunney Awaiting Stork

DAMARISCOTTA, Me., Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Polly Lauder Tunney, wife of the former heavyweight champion, was taken to a hospital here a week or 10 days ago to await the birth of a child, the Associated Press learned today.

A doctor advised her to go to the hospital when she suffered a fall on a motor boat landing on John's Island, near here, where she and her husband had been spending the summer.

Gene Tunney had been constantly in attendance at the hospital, frequently spending the night there. Mrs. Tunney is attended by two nurses.

Mrs. Tunney's condition was not considered dangerous, although hospital authorities refused to comment on her condition.

Cloonan Hurls Fist Fight Challenge at McGovern

Gilbert C. Cloonan, head of the Election Bureau, invited County Commissioner C. C. McGovern to "come out in the yard" and fight it out during a County Commissioners' meeting today.

The trouble started when McGovern claimed he had been cheated in the drawing for ballot positions in the last election. Cloonan is scarcely two-thirds as large as McGovern.

Cloonan came into the meeting with a letter announcing that the drawing for positions on the Republican primary ballot would be held Thursday. No sooner was the letter read, than McGovern leaped to his feet, declaring:

"I'm damn sure I was cheated out of my place four years ago. The organization always gets top positions on the ballot.

"One of the judges, not a candidate, should draw in this room and use the envelope system like the state does."

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the board, interrupted to inquire:

"What is the system being used now?"

McGovern replied:

"Shaking dice and there isn't a chance of beating it."

Cloonan, his eyes blazing with anger, leaped to his feet and shouted:

"I demand a public apology,

LINDYS FLY TOWARD NOME

Forced Down by Fog, They Resume Flight Halted 75 Miles Short of Goal

BULLETIN.

SEATTLE, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—A message relayed by Anchorage from the naval radio station at St. Paul Island in Bering Sea, said the Lindbergh plane was "one hour off Nome at 7:30 a. m." (11:30 a. m. Pittsburgh time) today. This would indicate, operators at the Bremerton naval radio station believed, that the Lindberghs had taken off from Kotzebue Sound for Nome.

NOME, Alaska, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed on the north coast of the Seward Peninsula about 11 p. m. last night (6 a. m. Pittsburgh time today), after leaving Point Barrow at 12:53 p. m. Pitts. burgh time.

Messages received here did not give the exact location of the landing place, but indicated it was somewhere on Kotzebue Sound. Hence the flying couple fell short of Nome, their immediate destination, by about 75 miles. Nome is on the south coast of the Seward Peninsula.

Advices said the Lindberghs planned to come here in the daylight.

ASKS FOR FLARES

Contact was made with the Lindbergh ship at about 10 p. m. and the radio station here was asked by Mrs. Lindbergh to have flares and bonfires ready on the beach for a landing about midnight.

The landing evidently was made when heavy fog enveloped the district over which they were flying, causing the famous pair to change their plans.

The Lindberghs left Point Barrow last night after weather reports here indicated clearing skies.

MURDER NEWS BY LETTER

Sister Reading Suicide Brother's Note

MISS ALICE SNYDER, 18 . . . HER BROTHER WROTE OF MURDER

Miss Snyder, pictured today in her Coverdale (Pa.) home as she read the letter her brother, Joseph, 28, wrote her before he shot himself fatally. Another note told of how he had killed Mrs. John Hart (Elizabeth Valek, 19), who had rejected his attentions.

JILTED MAN KILLS GIRL AND SELF

Suicide Note Tells of Luring Victim to Death Scene In Woods at Coverdale

With a bullet wound in the heart and partially hidden by weeds, the body of Elizabeth Valek Hart, 19-year-old victim of a jealous suitor, was found today on a hillside overlooking the Red Tile interurban car stop at Coverdale.

The body was found by Mitchell Dozanchek, one of a posse of 50 striking miners—residents of the tented city at Coverdale—where her former sweetheart, Joseph Snyder, 28, a striking miner, wrote that it would be found before firing a bullet into his own head.

Death came swiftly to the girl, who had been lured to her death by Snyder—his jealousy fanned to fury by news which reached him yesterday of the girl's marriage to John Hart, 21, a Pennsylvania Railroad car washer.

Mrs. Hart

She died without a struggle. The body was fully dressed.

LETTER GIVES CLUE

A letter found among Snyder's effects after he had been taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died three hours later, instituted the search in which striking miners, deputy sheriffs, county detectives and state police took part.

The search continued until halted by darkness and was resumed at dawn today. Two hours later Dozanchek called to searchers that the search was at an end. The body was found 20 feet from where the search ended last night.

Snyder's letter, addressed to friends, told of a love intensified by her marriage. He wrote:

"I am sorry for what had happened, but I just couldn't have it any longer, so I thought Elizabeth and I had better die."

Badly misspelled, the letter told of his ruse to get Mrs. Hart away from the home of Charles A. Bloser at 2383 West Liberty ave.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—A Reuter's dispatch from Tokio today said the public prosecutor there had decided to order the confinement of Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, Jr., American aviators, pending the outcome of an investigation of charges that they flew over fortified areas in Japan without permission.

Mourning Husband Recalls Bride's Fear of Slayer

John Hart was to bring home a bride today to a little farmhouse near Oakdale, where he lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hart.

He spent yesterday buying furniture to outfit a two-room apartment in the Hart home.

But instead of a joyous homecoming, it was to be a sad, somber affair with a tearful-eyed young man of 21 following the hearse which bore the lifeless body of his young wife, Elizabeth Valek Hart, slain by a jealous suitor.

They were married in Wellsburg last Thursday, a secret elopement because the bride's father objected, according to the husband, He said:

"Elizabeth and I had known each other for four years. Her father did everything to break up our friendship—he wanted her to marry one Snyder, the fellow who did this."

Hart was unaware of last night's tragedy until told this morning by fellow workers in the Twenty-sixth street yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, where he is employed as a car inspector. He hastened to the morgue to identify his wife and make arrangements for her burial from his home in Oakdale. He told deputy coroners that his wife lived in mortal fear of Snyder.

"She told me several times that Snyder had said he would kill both her and myself if she married me instead of him."

CRISIS SPLITS M'DONALD CABINET

Premier Hastens Back to London Over Finances; King Summons Council

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service

LONDON, Aug. 11.—Breaking up his vacation to face what the London Daily Express terms the Labor government's "greatest crisis," Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald returned to 10 Downing street from his country home at Lossiemouth, Scotland today.

Newspapermen immediately confronted him with widespread rumors that the cabinet was badly split on economy measures and that a "national emergency coalition government" was contemplated to see the nation through the crisis.

KING'S SECRETARY CALLS

The Premier declared:

"I have not even seen these reports."

The first official visitor to 10 Downing street was Sir Clive Wigram, King George's personal secretary, whose call served to strengthen rumors that some sort of change in the governmental lineup impended. After meeting Sir Clive the Premier said:

"I am going to see certain ministers and discuss what you may call general governmental business. I cannot go into details."

Shortly after lunch a meeting of the party leaders was held under the chairmanship of King George.

MUST CUT EXPENSES

The present crisis was precipitated by the report of a parliamentary committee of experts recommending an immediate cut in public expenditures of almost $500,000,000, including economies of unemployment insurance amounting to $132,500,000.

While official statements from Washington definitely repudiated published rumors of a war debt agreement between British and American statesmen, reports persisted that the MacDonald government was considering the possibility of scaling down or even canceling war debt payments as an alternative to drastic economies recommended.

mine, where he was employed as a domestic.

"I didn't know how to get her to talk to, so I called her up on the phone and said her mother was sick and when she got off the car we took a walk out in the woods and had a friendly talk.

"She said she was in the wrong and not me.

"She double crossed me, but I now forgive her."

The love of the man was strong, Snyder indicated.

"I was so worried that I thought the best thing for me to do is to die.

"My little sweet Elizabeth as I always called her is lying dead back in the woods at the last company house back of the hillside where Price used to live.

"So by by and please look for her for she is laying dead there. Am very sorry."

SUITOR EIGHT YEARS

County detectives revealed today that the jilted suitor made his call to the girl he had courted for more than eight years from a store at Bethel.

Accompanied by Elizabeth Hazika, 17, of Coverdale also a domestic in a Mt. Lebanon home, Elizabeth left the interurban car at the Red Tile stop and walked down a pathway to her home.

Half way down the path they were met by Snyder. Miss Hazika said. Miss Hazika turned toward her home and Elizabeth and Snyder headed for the woods to their tragedies with death.

Snyder had not been staying at the family home at Coverdale for more than a week. On Monday he stayed with Mrs. Mary Fele, who resides south of the couple slain at her home. Mrs. Fele permitted him to do so. Yesterday afternoon she said her brother had been brooding and walked into the woods.

TRAIL RETRACED

Retracing Snyder's steps during the afternoon, detectives today said Snyder took the girl's umbrella and pocketbook containing $6 and hung it in his home where the articles were found hidden under a pillow in his bedroom.

He talked a short time with his brother John, 23, and his sister Rose Voltmore, and then left the house.

His route, according to police led him past the Coverdale mission, to the city where he talked with two acquaintances. He said:

"So long, fellows, I'm going."

They asked:

"Where are you going?"

"I don't know. I don't know where I am going."

Snyder started to cry as he walked down the road.

His friends followed him down the road a short distance and returned to their tent.

SHOT ANSWERS CALL

A few minutes later Mrs. Voltmore approached the tented city. As she came abreast of the settlement she called to Joseph.

A shot was her answer.

The brother notified Constable Ben Smith who was at the Bethel store. Smith and his deputy, John McMullan, went to a clump of woods where they found the wounded man a bullet wound in his mouth.

Shortly before the shooting Snyder had given Mrs. Fele four letters one for his sister, Alice, 18, another for a cousin in Cleveland and the other two for mysterious in Coverdale. The letter to Alice told of the anguish the man suffered of his love for the girl who had married another and his love for his family. It read:

"Dear Little Sister:—

"I guess you know that I am heart broken over my little girl, Elizabeth. Oh, how I loved her, and things went the other way. Oh, how I hate to do this—I guess it can't be helped. It will be a hard thing for me to leave you, for I always did like you, and I wish you would come to see me in my casket for the last time. Alice, you may think that I went crazy, but I know just what I am doing. Alice, tell mother and pap and brothers and sisters to forgive me for what I did for them. I am sorry now and I see it myself. Tell Mae all about my love for Elizabeth when you see her, and I would like Mae to see me for the last time, for I am not going to be seen again. I know you will miss me, Alice dear, I will also miss you, but after a few days try and forget about it. Alice, you know that I often get mad at you and I know I was in the wrong, and I always came back and talked with you and made it up with you. Don't think that I am mad at you for I like you as John did, and it will be hard for me to leave you. I remain, from Joe to dear sister, Alice. Bye, bye."

2 GIRLS, BOY ESCORTS SLAIN, BURNED ALONG LONELY ROAD

'PETTING PARTY' GANG BEING SOUGHT

Charred Bodies Found in Car; Signs of Desperate Struggle With Attackers

International News Service.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 11. Two schoolboys and two girl companions were murdered today, their bodies soaked with gasoline and a torch applied to their automobile on a lonely road at the Wayne Washtenaw County line, near here.

The victims were Thomas Wheatley, 17, and Harry Lohr, 16, Ypsilanti High School students, and Virginia Gould, 15, and Anna Harris, 17, both of Cleveland, O.

The two girls were spending their vacation at the Lohr home and had attended a Junior League party here last night.

PETTER BANDITS

Sheriff Jacob Andres declared that "petting party" bandits were responsible for the slayings. Police in reconstructing the crime, declared that the youths had apparently parked the car to watch the sunrise. As they idled in the automobile, the bandits drew alongside in a large car and apparently attempted to molest the girls.

The Sheriff said that he believed Wheatley and Lohr were beaten into unconsciousness or killed in a struggle when they attempted to protect their girl companions.

GIRLS BEATEN

Later, the Sheriff stated the girls were probably beaten and thrown back into the car with the bodies of their boy companions. The interior of the sedan was soaked with gasoline and the torch applied.

Identification of the victims was started by Harry Wheatley, the father of Thomas. An elderly and gaunt man, he trembled as he gave police his statement. His wife collapsed and is under the care of a doctor. The father said:

"Tom asked me last night if he could use the car. He told me there was a Junior League party and that he and a boy named Lohr wanted to go. I told him to go ahead.

"We worried when he didn't come back. He had never been out that late before. This—I guess is the answer.

DR. CALLAHAN SOLVES 2,500 YEAR PUZZLE

Trisects an Angle in His Studies to Disprove Theory Advanced by Einstein

The Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president of Duquesne University, has solved one of the "unsolvable" problems of mathematics — one that for 2,500 years "couldn't be done."

It was announced today that he has, by Euclidean geometry, trisected an angle, a mathematical problem that has engrossed the attention of mathematicians since Hippias of Elis, ancient Greek contemporary of Socrates, first tried it.

Two other geometrical stumbling blocks are yet among the "unsolvable." They are the reduplication of the cube—that is, finding a cube whose volume is double that of a given cube, and the squaring of a circle, which means to find a square or some other rectilinear figure exactly equal in area to a given circle.

Father Callahan's forthcoming book, "Euclid or Einstein," to be published next month, contains the solution, as well as a proof of the fifth postulate—the parallel theory of Euclid. This had been an unproved theory since the beginning of geometry. This proof is declared to make impossible non-Euclidean geometry and the mathematics based on it—such as the relativity mathematics of Einstein.

INQUEST JURY FREES FAGAN

P. T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers, was exonerated by a coroner's jury today in the shooting to death of Pat Murphy, renegade miner of Texas, as he attempted to hold up Fagan at his home, 822 Woodbourne avenue, July 26.

Fred Snyder, alleged accomplice of Murphy, taken from jail to the inquest, testified he met Murphy while riding freight trains from Louisville to Bellaire, O., that Murphy pawned a diamond ring for $17 and held up a moonshine resort in Wheeling before coming to Pittsburgh. The two had been drinking for several days prior to going to Fagan's home, Murphy declaring he was going to "make Fagan come across with some money."

MANLEYS HAPPY ON LAKE TAHOE HONEYMOON

Educator Wed to Mrs. Hill, Wife of Former Colleague, Hour After Reno Divorce

LAKE TAHOE, Cal., Aug. 11—Dr. Louis K. Manley, former dean of business administration at the University of Pittsburgh, and his wife, until yesterday Mrs. Ruth Houston Hill, wife of a former associate professor at the same school, were honeymooning here today after a marriage which took place in Reno, Nev., within an hour after Mrs. Hill was awarded her divorce. Manley said:

"Mrs. Manley and I are very happy. My plans for the future are indefinite, but I most certainly expect to remain in the education field."

Manley, like his bride, was freed from his matrimonial bonds in Reno, being granted a divorce from Mrs. Sarah Mitchell Manley on June 22, less than two months after he had resigned from the faculty at Pitt, ostensibly for the purpose of a European study trip.

The former Pitt dean charged his wife with being "domineering" and calling him names; she accused him of lack of consideration and solicitude and mental and physical cruelty.

Mrs. Hill told Divorce Judge J. Emmit Walsh yesterday that her husband started abusing her soon after their marriage and continued until she "could stand it no longer."

The Manleys have two children, the Hills one.

Mrs. Manley at present has the custody of her children. There was no ruling yesterday as to the custody of the Hill's young son, but it was understood that it would be divided equally between his parents.

ADAMS DENIES POLICE BRUTAL

HARRISBURG, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Any Pennsylvania state policeman found using brutality in questioning a prisoner would be courtmartialed, Maj. Lynn G. Adams, commander of the Pennsylvania State Troopers, said last night in commenting on the report of the Wickersham Commission that the third degree was still used in some parts of the state.

Maj. Adams said:

"It depends on what they mean by the third degree. If they mean torture, we don't use it. If they mean interrogation of prisoners—we do use that. But we don't abuse them."

Maj. Adams said prisoners often have claimed, when on trial, the state police have mistreated them while they were being questioned, but that such claims were not based on fact. No brutality has been used by state police since he headed the organization, he stated.

M'GOVERN NEAR FISTICUFFS

Commissioner McGovern: "You stated that you were cheated."

McGovern and Cloonan [illegible]

"How're you going to get it?"

Cooler Cloonan said:

"A gentleman would make an apology."

Armstrong again interrupted with:

"Why, Commissioner McGovern, this dice system is all right. You ought to know all about dice. You've handled a lot of dice."

McGovern snapped back:

"You know more about dice than I do—you're an old gambler."

Armstrong let that one go and answered:

"The county employes are just as honest men as any judge on the bench."

NUMBER BALLS ROLLED

Cloonan settled the argument as to Armstrong and McGovern's respective crap shooting ability by telling them that dice were not used in the drawing—that number balls were rolled out a bottle instead.

By the time Armstrong had his second wind of sarcasm and reopened the battle by remarking:

"I want to put up a prize for one honest man other than Commissioner McGovern."

This apparently was all that Cloonan needed, for he shouted at McGovern:

"You're not fair as a man. You can broadcast your stuff in the newspapers, but I don't take it off you, Buck."

McGOVERN ANGERED

McGovern again thoroughly angry, roared:

"If I was close enough to you—"

But Cloonan interrupted:

"Come on down in the yard."

McGovern sputtered and started to give an answer but before he could reply Armstrong [illegible] for order.

Cloonan disregarded the chairman's gavel and shouted:

"I won't shut up."

But he did, and the meeting went on to take up discussion of the 1,100 voting machines the county is supposed to buy, which will have for the election.

REICHCONTESTS RE-DRAW

Court action to compel Attorney Joseph H. Reich's name to be placed first on the list of judicial candidates in the Republican primary election was being drafted today.

Former Deputy Sheriff David Matthews yesterday drew No. 1 position for Reich in the official ballot-placing draw at Harrisburg. Then after 17 others had drawn, it was discovered that there were only 18 numbers for the 23 candidates seeking the seven judgeships.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish, under whose supervision the draw was held, merely smiled and announced it would have to be done again.

This time Matthews drew 18 for Reich No. 1 coveted position on any ballot going to Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

Attorney Warren H. Van Kirk and other supporters of Reich said today that they were to study the legal aspects of the affair preparatory to filing a mandamus action against Beamish to force him to order Reich's name in the No. 1 position.

Taxes May Evict Parents of York Duchess

LONDON, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The Earl and Countess of Strathmore, parents of the Duchess of York, who are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary, may have to abandon their ancestral home at Glamis Castle, Scotland, on account of increased taxation.

The Daily Mail quoted the earl as voicing those fears in these words:

"Taxation, local and imperial, absorbs 80 of every 100 pounds I receive, and now comes the new land tax. I fear I may no longer be able to remain in the residence."

Why Fat Folks Stay Fat

"The trouble with me, and I guess this applies to 95% of the men and women who are putting on weight, I didn't have the energy or pep to keep fit. Lost all interest in the healthful activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds until I got that 'Kruschen feeling.'

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce. This is what they do: they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and lifeless energy you almost forgotten had existed.

A jar of Kruschen Salts lasts four weeks and costs but a few cents. Its daily use means a joyful increase in energy, health and vitality that will amaze you. Get a bottle today from any druggist in the world. Don't diet—eat what you like (in reason, of course) but see that you take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast. Be sure this is your routine for one month. Then you will be astonished at the difference in your health, appearance and feelings. Kruschen Salts is sold at all good druggists throughout the world.

Maried Girls Held Best School Teachers

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—A paper published by summer students at Teachers' College, Columbia University, finds married women usually superior teachers. It says that a woman "who likes teaching well enough to remain in the profession when she no longer is compelled to do so for a means of support will be better qualified than girls who are in the work only to spend the time until marriage."

Boy, 12, Shoots And Kills Girl of 7

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 11 (AP.)—A pistol, fired by a 12-year-old boy at play, last night caused the death of Betty Lee Murray, 7. The girl and William Lucas were playing at the home of the boy's grandfather, S. P. Burford, and the boy took the pistol from a kitchen shelf and pointed it at Betty. He told officers he did not intend to shoot. Coroner W. F. Wirt declared the shooting accidental.

GULDEN'S Mustard

Mr. Arthur Fertig Asked Us:

"How can you expect to do any business at 15% off when other stores are advertising 10% to 50% savings?"

Mr. Arthur Fertig is the well-known Store Analyst, who was visiting Spear's the day all the Opening Announcements of the August Furniture Sales appeared in the Pittsburgh newspapers.

It's a fair question, and one we are glad to answer, because in the answer lies the reason for Spear's furniture success over a period of 38 years. Mr. Fertig lives in New York, so he may be excused for not knowing what every Pittsburgher does know:

—that Spear's 15% Discount is GENUINE.

—the customer takes it off the ORIGINAL price ticket.

—it applies on EVERY PIECE* of furniture in both Spear stores.

—there is no out-of-date furniture with year-old price tags to command a mere 10% off, no undesirable styles to go begging at 50% "Savings."

—in Spear's August Sale EVERY PIECE is Fashion-Right in Style and Quality.

—and EVERY PIECE is a straight 15% OFF TODAY'S prices, which happen to be the lowest in 16 years!

—consequently Spear's August 1931 Values are the greatest anyone has ever seen at any time!

—the REGULAR low marked price tags remain on every article; Spear prices do not "go up" in August that they might "come down" when the discount is applied.

—In August they are simply and honestly 15% off, and the savings, Pittsburghers know, are TREMENDOUS!

"These are the reasons," we told Mr. Fertig, "why Spear's 15% Off Sale is the biggest Furniture Event in Pittsburgh."

"But why," said he, "why, if your regular day-in, day-out prices are so remarkably right, why do you NEED to give a 15% discount in August?"

Well, the simple truth is, there is no reason for it, except that this is August, and stores in every city and town in these United States have taught the public to expect "extra savings" in the August Furniture Sales.

We recognize the importance of this established state of affairs, and so, not to be equaled by anyone else, and to maintain our notable furniture leadership, we offer the biggest August Savings possible . . . 15% Off, and this we can afford to do because of the tremendous increase in the volume of business this genuine discount brings us.

ALL-EXPENSE TOURS

to Saguenay River in Old French-Canada

$130.00

Sailings June to September

THE 9-day tour starts from Cleveland, although ships may be boarded at any stopping point, and takes you down the great St. Lawrence River that flows through picturesque, historic French-Canada. First you visit Niagara Falls and then steam across the Lake to Toronto, Queen City of Canada. Leaving Toronto you sail among the jewelled Thousand Islands and shoot in perfect safety the series of eight roaring rapids to Montreal. Here you sightsee for a day with hotel accommodation.

On to Quebec by night, down the best lighted waterway in the world. Dawn finds you docked beneath the most wreathed ramparts of this fortress city. You spend a day on the return trip exploring its quaint, winding streets and promenading its famous Dufferin Terrace, which overlooks from on high the beautiful harbour. You visit the celebrated Shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupré. Miraculous cures are reported here and pilgrims journey from the four corners of the earth to worship at this hallowed spot.

Away down the widening reaches of the St. Lawrence to Murray Bay and peaceful Tadoussac. This little village, dreaming beneath its mountain background, is the last port of call before the awe-inspiring sail up the mysterious Saguenay River, guarded by its stupendous capes. A cruise into an old world that lies close at hand. See it before this corner of natural grandeur becomes part of all that is modern. Accommodation, both ship and hotel, is on the most luxurious scale.

Remember, every expense on this enjoyable cruise has been foreseen and included in the figure quoted above, as well as stop-overs at important hotels en route. A courteous escort relieves you of every travel worry.

A BIG BOY named Ernest was celebrating his birthday in Bob Barnes' Associated Press office in Nogales, Mexico.

Bob and I found ourselves talking about the gorges of the Colorado River. According to the newspapermen, the Colorado is infested with rapids, and the gorges are far from attractive to the tourist.

I was a member of an expedition last November. Rather related, and it was a trip I'll never be able to forget.

For weeks and months we forced our way through the icy

THE GOOD OLD WAY IS BEST WITH CORNS

There's nothing new about corns. So why try new-fangled rapid-fire "cures" when millions can tell you of a safe, sane, sensible treatment that has worked well for millions for 31 years?

The good old way is the Blue-jay way. Those same little Blue-jay corn plasters that were winning fame in 1900 will bring you relief today—instantly. The moment Blue-jay cushions the tingling spot and stops the pressure and chafing.

Blue-jay is thin, velvet-soft. Wear it comfortably while you work or play, serenely confident that its mild medication will soon soften and detach your corn.

Be sure to get good, reliable Blue-jay, made by Bauer & Black, the well-known manufacturers of surgical dressings. The safe treatment. At all druggists, 25c.

INTEREST RATE CUT REFUSED

A reduction in interest rates on school board deposits asked by five McKeesport banks was denied at a meeting of the board held last night.

The recommendation of the finance committee of the board to maintain the present rate of 2 per cent on the general fund and 3 per cent on the sinking fund was approved unanimously by the board.

A report of the contractor erecting the new Grandview and Eleventh Ward grade school indicated the building would be ready for occupancy in November.

GIRL PLAYING 'BANDIT' FREE

Josephine Houser, 15, of 251 East Third avenue, Homestead, was back home with her parents today, her dreams of visiting New York by detective story tactics shattered.

She was released by Juvenile Court authorities to her father, Joseph C. Houser, after telling her story of being picked up by a youthful motorist on Browns Hill Sunday night, showing him a revolver and ordering him to drive to New York.

She fed the citizens of police she told them her adventure was to outwit by reading detective tales.

LEAP SAVES BOY IN AUTO CRASH

Five-year-old Valadimir Shoosterg's presence of mind saved him from death or serious injury last night.

Playing in his father's automobile parked in front of his home at 3721 Parkview avenue, the boy, police said, released the brakes. The automobile raced down Parkview avenue about 50 feet, crashed a tree, about 150 feet below. Just as the car struck the tree, Valadimir jumped from the machine into the street.

NO REST FOR JIMMIE

M-G-M officials are beginning to wonder where Jimmie Durante has been all their lives. After seeing him in the new Bill Haines picture they promptly assigned him to "The Cuban," starring Lawrence Tibbett. Jimmie Tibbett and Ernest Torrence are to be three musketeers of the Marines in this [illegible] swashbuckler.

And when "The Cuban" is finished there's talk of a picture with Jimmie and Gary Cooper.

Looks as if [illegible] comedy stars were rising.

DID YOU KNOW

That you never see real money or real postage stamps in a motion picture? The government won't allow them to be photographed.

"TOASTING" expels SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally

(Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals)

present in every tobacco leaf

"They're out—so they can't be in!"

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip,* as well as a powerful spraying solution for fruits, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!" No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Henrietta Crosman is among the numerous stage luminaries who are in Los Angeles, others being Ethel Barrymore who is the guest of her brother Lionel while playing there in "The School for Scandal," Florence Reed, who is said to be thinking about another try at the screen, Alla Nazimova, Gertrude Farrell and Claire Windsor, who await the opening of "On the Spot" in which they were seen here. Miss Crosman will be seen in a new play by William Anthony McGuire which will have its premiere in the California city August 18. The betrothal of Mr. Winter and Loretta Lane, former leading woman of the Gaudge Sharp players here recently was announced.

Itching Toes ? Burning Feet

If so, you're probably just another of over 10 million U. S. adults suffering with a raw foot infection, which, unchecked, quickly spreads to sides and bottom of feet—itching becomes intense.

The popular name for this fermenting disease is Athlete's Foot. You can check the contagious and unbearable misery today with Moone's Emerald Oil, a powerfully penetrating and healing antiseptic, which all druggists dispense. Itching instantly stops. After 2 weeks, feet in healthy condition again—or money back.

An 85-cent bottle lasts 2 weeks and there is nothing better for sore, burning, aching feet.

Every Woman Quickly Sees Through Artifices of Another Woman, Fay King

By FAY KING

Every woman instantly sees through all the artifices of another woman.

A clever woman may fascinate all the men with her assumed grace, but she cannot fool one woman.

Every woman is capable of practicing these affectations, but most of them do not.

Yet when she sees with what success they are used, it seems absurd that she should not.

In a room full of pretty women the one who receives the most attention is the one who has studied a becoming pose.

Men are easily captivated by it.

That is why beautiful girls in stores and offices acting sensibly seem less attractive than beautiful girls trained in the glamorous gestures of the stage.

I think most men admire a little affectation.

How to Keep Well

Simple Soap and Water Ideal Disinfectant

Dr. Copeland

What is a good disinfectant? This is a question I am frequently asked. It is always asked in the hope that there is some quick, easy process. It is a common question. Indeed during epidemics of mumps, measles, chickenpox and other infectious diseases.

The public is always willing to buy expensive disinfectants. Yet one of the best agents for combating disease and dirt is soap and water. This simple fact is overlooked. It appears to be too simple a thing.

In dealing with an infected person, the infectious matter must be destroyed. This must be done in every case. There are no exceptions. The secret of all the methods of combating disease germs is cleanliness. That is the only safe procedure.

Experience teaches that the sick person is placed in a room where he will have no direct contact with the well members of the family. Then he washes himself with soap and water. In addition, the patient finds relief by the use of fresh air and sunshine. Germs thrive and multiply in dirt and darkness. Therefore, to bring disinfectants to bear on disease and then to allow the germs to remain in dirt and darkness is not to bring disinfectants.

The chief value that many strong disinfectants have is the cleansing effect of the chemicals. They may be of value when used in factories and wash-houses.

Hands may be rid of all bacteria by thoroughly scrubbing with soap and water. It is interesting to note that in most hospitals surgeons prior to operating use only soap and water to scrub their hands. Following this preparation in these modern days sterile rubber gloves are worn, if needed.

There is a tendency to do away with cheap and strong disinfectants. It has been proved that they are little superior to soap and water. In fact, in some instances they are inferior because of their irritating properties.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

High pillows are sometimes responsible for stringy necks and double chins. They produce round shoulders and flat chests. During sleep the body should be extended, chin poised high.

Fresh young complexions don't need astringents, lotions designed for the purpose of tightening loose tissues and for refining the texture of the skin. A simple astringent and one that the epidermis likes is witch hazel. It is most effective when used very cold, so keep the bottle in the refrigerator. Cold water hardens tissues because it brings a quick reaction of the blood streams.

Bust development can be accomplished by gentle massage with any heavy oil, bathing with cold water every morning, going through vigorous calisthenics that pull hard on the muscles of chest and upper arms. Friction with alcohol is recommended.

By placing rouge high up on the cheeks the brilliancy and coloring of the eyes are enhanced. A bit of rouge on the eyelids imparts freshness and vitality to the complexion. The newest rouge tints are yellow-red, the purple reds having passed into the limbo of forgotten beauty accessories. Lip coloring should match.

DIAGONAL LINE INTEGRAL PART OF SMART DRESSES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 11.—The diagonal cut still takes one quickly and surely to the goal of smartness. Seen on very few frocks at first, this line has become almost an integral part of every smart dress. It permits the softly moulded line that is the essence of elegance and also gives a graceful movement to the skirt. And so it is no wonder that both designers and clients are biased in favor of the bias. And to this is added a song of praise from the material manufacturers for this cut certainly does eat up the fabric. Lingerie of course must follow the same diagonal path to ensure that perfect fit that is virtually a necessity if one is to present a perfect sartorial picture.

DELICATELY COLORED fabrics score definitely these days with pale blue seen everywhere. Gray is a shade that seems to depend more on individual preference and so it is always seen even when it isn't prominent on the season's color card. Both of the lovely frocks shown in the accompanying drawings use these colors. The frock to the left is in pale blue crepe romain. It was worn by the Countess de Sesmaisons at tea in the Bois. The dress has a cowl neckline on a close bodice and the skirt, which has a circular movement, is fitted with a flat hip line by means of diagonal piecings. There is an interesting twisted rope girdle. The small "amazone" hat is of thin black straw with a short black ostrich plume. Black suede gloves and patent leather pumps with steel buckles repeat the color note of the hat.

Houston Ignored by Dunlap in Food Bids Conference

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

PAGEANT FEATURES FIREMEN'S MEET AT TARENTUM

OFFICIAL CALLS COMPLAINANT 'DISTURBER'

Merchant Declares He Will Go to Court Over 'Trick' Contracts He Opposes

John D. Houston, whose complaint started the city food probe, was not invited to a recent conference called by Col. W. R. Dunlap, Director of Supplies, to consider Houston's charges that trick specifications were used in asking bids for groceries, developments today disclosed.

The conference, attended by a group of food supply men, was satisfactory, Dunlap said today.

HOUSTON A "DISTURBER"

Asked why he failed to invite Houston, inasmuch as his complaint was responsible for the meeting being called, Dunlap said:

"There was no necessity to invite him, for he had stated his objections in writing. Anyhow, Houston is a disturber, and that is one reason he was not asked to be present."

Replying to Dunlap, Houston today said:

"You bet I am a disturber when things are not right. If Dunlap lets those contracts on the specifications he put out, and on the basis of the bonds bidders are asked to sign, he will have to defend court proceedings, as an injunction to restrain him from letting them will be sought."

Dunlap denied using trick specifications such as was charged to his predecessor, Bertram I. Succop, indicted with Mayor Kline.

ATTACK RENEWED

Houston declared the methods of taking bids "have all the possibilities of Succop's trick specifications." He said:

"The long term contracts which bidders have been asked to sign provide for delivery of the latest crop at intervals, whereas at the time the bids are taken, only merchandise on which bids can be based is that of the current crop. A material difference exists in the value of the current crop and the new crop."

Houston explained that the agreements a bidder is asked to sign, backed by a bond, permits the city to requisition any quantity of merchandise it sees fit, and at the same time gives the city the right to refuse any of the materials which the bidder may have provided to protect himself under the bond to insure delivery.

HOUSTON FLAYS KLINE WASTE

An appeal to citizens of Pittsburgh to "prevent the Kline-Coyne octopus from throttling the city" was issued today by John D. Houston, wholesale merchant, whose charges resulted in the city food expose, in behalf of his candidacy for nomination to Council. He said in part:

"Property owners of all races and creeds have told me of their desperate efforts to save their homes. Thousands are out of work, others forced to economize as never before. In spite of this, the Kline administration indulges in an orgy of useless expenditures, and cannot forego its Oriental rugs, mother-of-pearl bathtubs, custom-built tires and swagger monograms, while a subservient majority in Council approves every extravagance.

"If the people elect me, my aim will be to fix a tax rate that is reasonable, and make a budget that will fit the income; to vote for the appointment of capable heads of departments who will direct and not take orders from a political machine.

"I realize that all the money from the remunerative 'rackets' operated with the connivance of city officials will be put into this campaign to elect to Council Kline-Coyne candidates who will take orders. Let us prevent the Kline-Coyne octopus from throttling the city with its slimy tentacles."

Sidewalks Voted For Cochran Road

An ordinance to lay sidewalks on the Cochran road from Miami avenue to Snodgrass road, near the new Mt. Lebanon High School, was adopted by Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners last night over the objection of Commissioner C. W. Clatty, who held that when the roadway is resurfaced the sidewalks will be damaged by workmen. The ordinance was passed after discussion between Commissioners Clatty and L. C. Clark.

BOMB MINERS' HOME, 2 HURT

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 11 (AP).—The home of Charles Hricolak, a miner for the Constanza Coal Company at Warwood, was bombed last night. Two occupants of the dwelling were injured.

Hricolak, his wife and their two children and two boarders were asleep in the house when the bomb exploded on the front porch. The front door was torn away and windows were broken. Mrs. Hricolak and one of the boarders received minor hurts. This was the second bombing within a week in the neighborhood.

B. & L. SAFETY SEEN AT MEET

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11 (AP).—Building and loan associations generally, delegates to the centennial convention of the United States Building and Loan Association believe, will be able to weather the business depression. Delegates from every state and several foreign countries are in Philadelphia for the meeting.

R. Holtby Myers of Los Angeles, opened the convention with indorsement of building programs at the present time. He said no fear need accompany erection of dwellings and buildings in 1931 and building and loan associations might safely finance these.

Sir Enoch Hill, spokesman for 126 British delegates, asserted that 1931 would witness the largest building program in the history of Great Britain.

Officer Dismissed In Wilkinsburg

Accused of failure to obey orders of the Burgess and of drunkenness while on duty, Patrolman George Bieghey, of Wilkinsburg, was dismissed from the Police Department by the Borough Council last night.

Burgess William N. Turner charged the officer with fraternizing with young men and girls said to have been drinking in a store in Center street near Penn avenue, after he had ordered Bieghey to stop the alleged drinking in the store.

STUDY RECORDS IN ROAD FIGHT

Lack of a precedent was said today to be delaying plans of the Pittsburgh Motor Club for seeking an injunction to prevent Fallston authorities, Beaver County, from continuing their closing of the Fallston hill road on State Highway Route No. 51.

No similar case is contained in the legal records of the state, it is said. Meanwhile, employes of Fallston Council maintain guard at the barrier at the foot of the hill to turn back traffic.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Yesterday was our President's 57th birthday. I look for him to come in for a lot of censure for allowing himself to get that old. If ever a man should be wished well it should be him. We think everything has happened to us when nothing has happened that we can't look back and see was coming to us. Mr. Coolidge and Wall street and big business had had their big party and was just running out of liquor when they turned it over to Mr. Hoover. He arrived at the picnic when even the last hard-boiled egg had been consumed. Somebody slipped some limburger cheese into his pocket and he got credit for breaking up the dance. Prices and everything is getting back to normalcy; all but the people, they are the last to see it.

Yours, WILL.

Will Rogers

He served as chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania from 1892 until the time of his death. He was made a thirty-third degree Mason, in 1917. He leaves one daughter, Miss Carol Reynolds, of this city.

WESTINGHOUSE PAIR HONORED

F. J. Hepp — Mr. Hepp

Mr. Herzog

Mr. Hepp with Westinghouse since 1890, retired and L. Herzog, who began in the shop of which Hepp was superintendent in 1897, succeeded him as manufacturing engineer on designs for patterns.

Both men have creditable records with Westinghouse and their fellow-workers expressed their sentiments toward them with valuable gifts.

WATER BATTLE, MEMORIAL ALSO SET

Nominations of Officers Slated; 5,000 Now Occupy Tented Convention City

Nomination of officers and the first presentation of the historical pageant are features of today's sessions of the 38th annual convention of Western Pennsylvania Firemen at Tarentum. The convention opened yesterday with the registration of more than 5,000 delegates.

By tomorrow, the convention quota of 10,000 firemen from Western Pennsylvania is expected to be reached. Three hundred companies will be represented in the elections.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Today's program includes a memorial service for firemen who lost their lives during the past year, a water battle scheduled for this evening, and a concert to be given in the Tarentum High School auditorium.

A tent city has been erected on the outskirts of the town in order to take care of the delegates. Each delegation has taken a portion of the field and are laying out their tents in streets.

Two men have been put forward as potential nominees for presidency of the association. G. E. Cook of Sharpsburg and H. M. Zundel of Greensburg have been mentioned to succeed George E. Dilcher, of Monaca.

650 ACT IN PAGEANT

Connellsville and Conneaut Lake are expected to be the only cities mentioned today at the nominations for the site of next year's convention.

The historical pageant that will be given tonight, tomorrow, and Thursday, will feature 650 actors from Tarentum and vicinity. This pageant is given in an effort to raise the standard of patriotism by portraying the history of the United States, especially scenes of interest to Western Pennsylvanians.

Bugs Wants Some Bricks; Longs to Start Building

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

California grape growers are as puzzled as a champion tree-sitter in a thunder and lightning storm. They don't know whether to come down or climb higher.

Right now Mabel Willebrandt is preparing a pamphlet entitled, "Why home made fruit juices leave home."

There is nothing illegal about a brick of grape concentrates even if you carry 'em by the bodiful.

We are waiting the governmental okay on these California bricks as we want to start building.

One brick will make a gallon of California grape juice and a gallon of California grape juice will make any grade.

We agree with Mabel that there is nothing intoxicating about grape juice, apple cider or gasoline. But you can always get 20 miles to the gallon out of all three.

Maybe Mabel doesn't know it, if you allow prune juice to hang around long enough in the hot sun, you will get a mixture that a diamond couldn't scratch.

Grape juice isn't dangerous when it's grape juice. But you must remember that even Jackie Coogan grew up.

Anyway, Mabel is backed by precedent. At the battle of Bull Run it was Old Stonewall Jackson who said:

"Lay off that cannister and give 'em the grape."

Many Promise to Assist Destitute Mother

Mrs. Julia Huckey, 35, of 864 Carpenter way, North Side, was facing the future with rising spirits today after a period of anguish during which she and her four children, all under 8 years of age, suffered extreme deprivations.

Following a story printed in the Sun-Telegraph, a score of persons offered help in the way of clothing and food yesterday. One woman offered a portion of her salary every week to help the family, while a group of men sent their representative to offer assistance.

Sobbing, Mrs. Huckey told the story of how her little girl died through lack of proper care, and of how two of her little ones were taken from her about five years ago. Defiantly she told how she had them returned to her. She said:

"Why, if anyone were to take my children from me tonight, I surely would go down to the river bank and end it all. I couldn't bear to have them taken away from me.

"We'll get along; everyone's been so kind to us, and I've got a little bit coming in every week—enough to pay the rent and buy some groceries. But I'll die before I let them take my children."

Her children are Dolly, 8; Anna, 7; Elsie, 5 and Charles, 4.

PENELOPE REDD

Winter will bring more widely heralded exhibitions, but none so transcendent as the little group of drawings by Rockwell Kent that may be seen through the days of this week in the book department at Kaufmann's.

Ten of the 20 drawings for Venus and Adonis presently to be available in reproduction through Leo Hart's intended publication of the Shakespearian poem are shown.

Penelope Redd

The title page drawing of a figure in Greek Doric costume with head uplifted in tense passion establishes the mood for these drawings that transfigures the impersonally classic in the lambent immortal.

Adonis on his horse animates the beginning of the poem. Hunting, he loved, but love he laughed to scorn. The style of this drawing manifests the fierce self-disciplined talent of Rockwell Kent.

Colonial Stages perform better with Amoco Products

WHO should know more about motor performance than Interstate Transit, Inc.? Hundreds of Colonial Stages operate in states East of the Mississippi, much of the travel being in mountainous country and under difficult conditions. Schedules must be maintained. Delays must be avoided. Operating costs must be kept to a minimum.

And here's what this large bus operator has to say about Amoco Products after using them for a period of eighteen months:

"Orange American Gas has not only proved a more economical regular gas but has also given us better performance on the road."

"The performance of Amoco Lubricants far exceeded our expectations--our cost per mile has been lowered and the efficiency of our fleet increased."

W. J. Corr, Superintendent of Operations for Colonial Stages, doesn't guess--he knows. You, too, can get better performance and lower operating costs with Amoco Products. Start today.

LITTLE SISTERS EXTEND THANKS

Mother Agatha, head of the band of Little Sisters of the Poor whose home for the aged on Penn avenue was wrecked by the flames and 48 lives lost, today issued a letter of appreciation for the generosity of those who have helped them.

Addressed "To the Good People of Western Pennsylvania," the letter said:

"We wish to express how deeply we have been touched by the universal sympathy and prompt assistance rendered us on the occasion of the terrible destruction of our home recently.

"Will you permit us to speak in their name to express, though feebly, their heartfelt gratitude as well as ours, for the generous work begun by the relief committee at the time when such an undertaking entails so many sacrifices and hard work in their behalf?

"Our gratitude extends not only from the Little Sisters of the Poor and their inmates of Pittsburgh, but our entire congregation with its aged charges throughout the world is vitally interested and praying for its success that God may grant His benedictions in a special way to all who show their love and respect to His aged poor."

Bananas Selling At 25 Cents for Wagonload

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11 (AP) — Bananas are selling for 25 cents a wagon load at the pier in Baltimore and one vessel that had arrived from Central America put out to sea with 3,000 bunches to be dumped in the ocean.

Approximately 100,000 bunches have been entering the port a week for some time and the market is glutted. Rather than have the fruit rot in the holds of the steamers, the importing companies have been disposing of the cargoes to street peddlers and middlemen for little or nothing.

So far this week, 73,000 bunches have arrived and 27,000 more are on a boat scheduled to dock Thursday.

BISHOP ON RADIO ASKS FIRE AID

A general appeal for voluntary contributions to the Diocesan Relief Fund for restoration of the Little Sisters of the Poor Home for the Aged was made in an address by the Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh Catholic Diocese, over Radio Station KDKA last night.

Bishop Boyle told of the work the sisters had been doing and gave a short history of the order. He then told of the fire which last month claimed 48 lives and of the immediate need of money to buy clothing for many of the inmates.

The midnight benefit shows Sunday night at the Stanley and Loew's Penn theaters raised $2,447.30 for the fund.

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Wonder if British listeneds tune in regularly to their king. It seems hardly credible, considering the king's eternal round of opening bazars, dedicating hospitals, patronizing charity shows.

British listeners might well ask if we tune in regularly to Hoover. The answer to them would be "no." Yet, our Presidents save their voices for the microphone at least, for something more vital than a bazar or a charity show. . . Speeches from all rulers are pretty dull affairs. The rulers are expected to be solemn, and they live up to the expectation . . . Yet, we're confident that some day we'll have a Great White Father who will make presidential radio an entertaining enterprise.

When pianists reach the concert stage of their careers they pass up Chaminade for Debussy. Yet, there's nothing more soothing to the ears than the ripples of Chaminade . . . Researchers are still trying to find out who wrote the first waltz and what it was called. One would think they'd rest content with the fact that Johann Strauss wrote the best ones . . . Can't the broadcasters find anyone who can speak about Washington as divertingly as the boys who write about it for the book publishers? . . . J. Andrew White, former president of Columbia, bobs up now as a play producer, with a satire, no less, upon radio . . . Well, he's on familiar ground anyway. A rib-tickling satire on Broadcasting, comparable, say, to the movie lampoon "Once in a Lifetime," has yet to be presented. But the boys are getting hotter. The nearest approach so far is a burlesque on announcers which Jack Hazzard gives in the revue, "Shoot the Works."

Nothing would cement Anglo-American goodwill more than a greeting to American children by the Princess Elizabeth. In human interest alone it would far outweigh all the pompous speeches of political bigwigs. Best reading voice on the radio today is Margaret Anglin's. Emperors of jazz are now adding to their bank deposits by engagements on the whoopee cruises of the big liners. At least there's no depression in the jazz industry. Broadcasters ever find room for strange names on their rosters. Latest on the list are Duci de Kerekjarto, Dagmar Rybner, Dorothy Daubel Zyllal Inez Shannon. Strange names are better remembered. They have more box office click. Mozart's music has at last been aired from the Mozart Festival in Salzburg. And that is news.

The "Trick" Is In the Sleeve of New

Cloth Coats

$55

Special August Sale Price

"Where did you get that sleeve?" might well be asked of new cloth coats.

"From the 'gay nineties' and the illustrious past," Fashion answers, and waves her arm in a spiral cuff, or modified dolman, or leg o' mutton, or melon sleeve—all showing width above the wrist or elbow. For a full sleeve makes a broader shoulder, and a broad shoulder makes a slimmer waist, and a slim waist makes one's figure look surprisingly slender—and that's the "trick" of the new fall coats!

Only coats with the new sleeves are in the August Coat Sale. Made of fine fabrics—trimmed in "luxury" furs—styled with the individuality of show pieces—they are a thrilling new definition of chic and value at $55. Women's, Misses' and Half Sizes.

EXTRA! ALL ABOUT THE FRENCH REVOLUTION IN HATS!

New Hats Revolt Against the Humdrum and Set Up a Republic of Romantic Individuality

Women look ravishing in this Renaissance type, $10 — Veil, with the ever-present feather, $5 — This is a "Derby year" for young sophisticates, $5

"Down with innocent baby bonnets! Up with Eugenie hats!" More has happened in the last six weeks than in the last hundred years of Millinery. Those face-exposing, wide-eyed caps and turbans have vanished—in favor of the oval crown: down-over-the-right-eye graces of the derby, the tip sailor, the boat hat, the marquis hat, the madcap and the peaked brim.

Oh yes, the new hats look "extreme" and hard to wear—but not to us, who know there's a shape, and a material, and an angle and a curve for every type of beauty. Let us teach you how to wear our new copies of French hats. The little prices, "more for the money" are samples of the sound French economy.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY—THE PROUD DUKE.—Charles Seymour, Duke of Somerset, 1662-1748, who had a distinguished political career, was an extreme example of aristocratic arrogance and parental despotism. He disinherited his daughter for having dared to sit down in his presence. His domestics obeyed him by signs, and the country roads on which he traveled were scoured by outriders to protect him from what he termed the "vulgar" gaze. The "Proud Duke" never forgave the Duchess, his wife, for having had the temerity to tap his shoulder lightly with her fan.

LOCAL RACQUET STARS WIN

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 11.—The twelfth annual Western Maryland net championship tourney will resume men's singles hostilities today after a sudden interruption by rain put a quietus on the program yesterday with only four singles completed. The inaugural day delay, while not disastrous, has made the jam-packed sufficient ties left to necessitate full speed ahead this morning and afternoon in order that first and second rounds may be wound up before dark.

Three Pittsburgh entrants did battle in the course of yesterday's abbreviated session. Edgar Altemus, Mt. Lebanon lad and third on the seeded list, disposed of Leo Florian, Washington, Pa., contender, 6-2, 6-3. Bill Clardy, ranky Westinghouse performer and fifth seeded star, caught a tough one in Bill Sloan, Tennessee south, but forehanded out a close victory, 4-6, 10-8, 6-2.

Sloan stroked steadily but lack of power and inclination to rush at length proved his undoing.

Al McCabe, Connellsville luminary, was the lone member of the Steel City delegation to go down. Charles Huston, Central Pennsylvania titleholder, posting him out in a 6-0, 2-6, 9-7 match.

McCabe's erratic shooting in the first and the third sets brought about his undoing.

In the only other brace of the session, Jim Allen, Davis-Elkins College mainstay, registered impressively over Carl Delauney, of Baltimore, 6-1, 6-2.

Dudley Struck By Lightning In Philly

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 11 (AP)—Ed Dudley, of Concord, was struck by lightning last evening as he putted on the 34th green in the annual Philadelphia open golf tournament at the Manufacturers Club. The incident, together with a heavy storm that followed, interrupted the day's tournament. Dudley was not seriously injured.

The Concord pro was leading the field at the time, having turned in a 72 on the first 18 holes. He had a steel-shafted putter in his hand when the lightning, traveled down an umbrella over him. The bolt apparently leaped to the club and into the ground.

After reaching the clubhouse, Dudley complained of his leg which was growing stiff. He said he did not believe he would be able to compete today.

WOMEN'S GOLF EVENT TODAY

A large field was expected to be playing at the Westmoreland Country Club today in the one-day medal play handicap tourney sponsored by the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania. Competition is to be over the 18-hole route.

An inter-chapter Pennsylvania Society Sons of the American Revolution team match between Pittsburgh and New Castle was slated for this afternoon at the New Castle Field Club. Dr. H. B. Decker of the local chapter and Homer C. Drake of New Castle are to direct play.

Emil Loeffler, Oakmont greenkeeper, started work today on a new 18-hole semi-private links in Blawnox to be known as the Wolf Trap Hollow Country Club. It will be completed within a year and play is anticipated for next season. Archie Loeffler, brother of Emil, is to supervise construction.

CRACK FIELD SET FOR WEST PENN AMATEUR

O'HARA VICTOR IN DISTRICT OPEN PLAY

By VERN SWARTSEAGER

Pete O'Hara, Westmoreland Country Club professional, yesterday annexed the Western Pennsylvania open golf championship by scoring 152 for the 36-hole medal play test at the Pittsburgh Field Club. He succeeds Ted Luther, lanky Corry (Pa.) Country Club pro, who finished with 159, tied with two others well down in the list.

Nelson Zimmerman, popular Wildwood pro, missed out by a stroke. His tally of 153 won him second money in the $325 prize list put up by the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association.

F. Vincent Eldred, Highland member of the paid brigade, and Rader Jewett, of Cedar Rocks, Wheeling, tied for third with 154 and Wayne Tobias, assistant pro at Greensburg, was fifth with 155. Eldred held the championship in 1929.

Pete was awarded the Harry C. Millholland trophy, emblematic of the championship.

O'HARA WINS $150

O'Hara was $150 richer today as a result of his rounds of 74 and 78 over the par 72 Field Club layout. Zimmerman won $75. Eldred and Jewett split $75. Tobias got $15, and $10 was split up between Dave McKay, of the home club, and Fred Baroni, of Oakland Beach, Conneaut Lake, who were tied for sixth prize with their 156s.

Walter Johnstone, Butler Country Club pro, was just outside the pale with his 158, while Johnny Capobianco, of Culbertson Hills, Edinboro, and Archie Loeffler, Oakmont, aggregated 159.

Tomorrow a star field of amateurs of the district will compete in the 18-hole qualifying round of the Western Pennsylvania amateur championship over the same course. In the past, qualifying has been at 36 holes, but the size of the field caused West Penn officials to cut the medal play distance this year.

Five flights of 16 each will be qualified for match-play rounds on Thursday and Friday. All match play will be at 18 holes, with the semi-final and final rounds Friday morning and afternoon.

FOWNES CUP PRIZE

The winner will receive the William C. Fownes, Jr., Trophy, while the Presaly T. Craig Bowl will go to the medalist. Aside from individual play, club teams of four men each will vie for the Chester H. Lehman Trophy for low aggregate score in the qualifying round.

In yesterday's competition O'Hara almost caused himself to be tied when he went bad on the eighteenth hole. He was just off of the green with his drive, and his second shot was very short—in the end he three-putted for a 5, which just gave him the title.

In the morning Pete, who only last week copped the big open tourney at the Bedford Springs Golf Club, failed to negotiate two putts of less than two feet, and these alone might have cost him the championship.

Zimmerman played fairly consistently to record a 78 and then a 75. Vince Eldred had a 75 and 79, Jewett, 76 and 78, and Tobias tallied 77 and 78.

STOCKER PLAYS WELL

Some of the best golf of the afternoon round was scored by Bill Stocker, Stanton Heights saddlemaster, who piled a beautiful 75 on top of a poor morning round of 90.

Herb Miller, Jr., of Aliquippa, former Edgewood champ, led the amateur brigade with a 36-hole total of 155. Ray Babcock, of Oakmont, had 160, and Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Highland, 162. Fred Brand, Jr., of Shannopin, recorded 164 blows, and Carl F. Kauffmann, three times national public links champion, and an undefeated West Penn amateur king, carded 161.

Fooled by the weather, which cleared up shortly after the show carded for last night, had been postponed yesterday afternoon, the Meyers Bowl management will make an effort to stage the Johnny Janick-Sammy Dorfman battle and supporting card tonight.

All of the boxers on the bill had been weighed at 3 o'clock yesterday and dark clouds loomed overhead, while rain had been falling intermittently throughout the day. No sooner had the club decided not to risk running last night than Ol' Sol peeked through the clouds and began to whoop it up for a beautiful sunset and a night that was made for outdoor arenas.

Janick (he says his name is spelled with a final k and not an h) scaled 134 pounds against 132¾ for his opponent. Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, weighed 144½, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, 146, for the eight-round semi-final. Carl Montebano, of Brandock, 160½, and Eddie Liebisch, of Columbus, subbing for Bobby Johns, of Dayton, 158½, for the second bout, and Al Justice, of Bellevale, 123½, and Jackie Wilson, of Homewood, 122, for the six-round opener.

Between Rounds

The Pre-Olympic Golden Gloves amateur tournament gets under way at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. arena tonight with 47 entrants. It will be continued tomorrow night.

Hickey Park, Millvale, has completed its card for Thursday night by signing Jimmy Reilly, of McKeesport, to box George O'Hara, local product in the second bout. Mose Butch and Jackie Rodgers are in the main bout. Jack Tracey and Johnny Moore, local Negro middleweights, in the eight-round semi-final, and Joe Johns, of Ambridge, and Andy Bossi, of Braddock, in the opener.

Mickey Cook, of Philadelphia, and Rose Pickett, of Norfolk, Va., box the ten-round main bout of a show at Cleveland today night.

GUNTHER POLO COACH HERE

The first Pittsburgh polo coach was signed last night by the Pittsburgh Polo Club which will meet the Iroquois Hunt and Polo Club of Lexington, Ky., Saturday afternoon here. Carl Gunther, experienced in Europe and in America, was secured.

The local polo mentor learned the game in Germany, where he played as well as rode on the race tracks. Coming to the United States he played with teams at Fort Sill and Wichita Falls. Later he coached the Ponca City, Tex., team and made a reputation as coach of the Hun School polo team in Princeton, N. J. Prior to coming here he was manager of the Cloverdale Polo Club, St. Elmo, Minn.

The local team under Gunther's plans will participate in the indoor matches at the A Battery Armory, New York, in March, and in the National open championship next fall.

Two additional local games have been added to the schedule, an informal match at the Pittsburgh Polo Club being slated for Sunday and another on Wednesday of next week. The Pittsburgh team plays the Iroquois Hunt and Polo Club here Saturday.

Retzlaff, Campolo Bout in Making

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Charley Retzlaff's next opponent may be the giant Argentine, Victorio Campolo. Madison Square Garden already has gained Campolo's consent to the match, to be held at the Polo Grounds, September 3, if all goes well, and Retzlaff may come to terms within the next day or so.

The bout, if it is definitely arranged, could interfere sadly with Jimmy Johnston's plan to match Campolo with Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, another up-and-coming youngster, at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, August 27.

Golfers known for their driving prowess will be among entries in the Western Pennsylvania championship driving contest at the Rob-O-Link driving range, Aspinwall, next Tuesday night.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO MOTORISTS

FOR more than half a century, the Waverly Oil Works Company has been a refiner of Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil; its products are now being marketed in every section of the United States as well as in many foreign countries.

It has been the policy of the company to manufacture lubricants of the very finest quality. Wherever Waverly products are sold they have the reputation of giving the finest performance at the most economical cost.

In order to clarify, once and for all, any misunderstanding that may exist, relative to the sale of our retail gasoline service stations in July, 1930 we wish to advise that this sale covered only the retail gasoline end of our business and did not include the refineries, national and international sales, trade marks, etc., or interfere in any way with the other operations of the company.

On June 18, 1931, a reorganization of the company was effected. The policies of the company were not altered, except to strengthen the enviable name already firmly established.

Waverly is a Pittsburgh Institution, absolutely independent in every respect, and is making and selling a complete line of oils, greases and soaps for every automotive and industrial use.

In Valley of Shadow, Forbes' Views Change

Toiling, Sweating, Earning, Saving Not Life's All; 'Earn Friends'

By B. C. FORBES

AS RAYMOND HITCHCOCK used to say as he strolled down the aisle of the theater re-

B. C. Forbes

fore his play started

Hello, folks!

For a while it looked doubtful whether I would ever be able to say Hello, Folks again to readers of this column.

After passing through the valley of the shadow of death, I would like to tell you how my views of life have changed.

A few of the things which I once used to think important were forcibly struck to the rear. Others, which I had never thought about, took on new significance. I see, I feel, I live differently.

Before those fresh impressions have had time to fade, I want to set down my present philosophy of life.

DURING MY sojourning in a section of Scotland where practically everybody had to wrestle strenuously and doggedly for a bare existence, it was impressed into me that the sentence inflicted by the Almighty on man when he was turned adrift in the world was:

"By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou labor and bring forth," also "if a man will not work neither shall he eat."

The doctrine drummed into me was that life was a fierce struggle, that there was no room for thrift, comfort or sentiment, and that success attained by man's fellows were the human standards from the cradle to the grave. I was taught that life was a grim business, full of travail and sorrow and tragedy, and that happiness must be looked for only beyond the grave.

Religion was so painfully gloomy, so incompatible with joyousness that to whistle to attract the attention of a mother or other on Sunday immediately called for a slap in the face.

POSSESSED BY that somber view of life and religion I was turned adrift in the world at the age of 14 to sink or swim. For more than 20 years thereafter most of these ideas continued to possess me.

I slaved and saved. Self-denial, self-sacrifice were accepted unquestioningly. Luxuries still seemed sinful. And in time I managed to lay up a comfortable nest-egg.

THEN I FOUND myself beginning to ask:

"What then?"

Gradually it dawned within me that life should consist of something more than money-making or something more than unremitting toil. More especially did it become a firmly rooted conviction that my forebears' conception of religion was all awry and that religion was of no earthly use unless it was conducive to joy and happiness and generosity, unless it could make life abundantly worth living.

I found myself reaching the conclusion that religion was made for man, not man made for religion, that religion must yield joyous rewards here, not merely hereafter.

WHILE I STILL believe that every young man should apply himself with earnest diligence to self-education, to industrious business, to following a decent ambition enthusiastically and to exercising thrift until he is within sight of reasonable provision for himself and dependents, my philosophy now is that thereafter he should give himself and his a rational, even generous measure of comfort, not to say luxury, that he should give quite as much thought to life and living as to earning a living.

MONEY-MAKING, therefore, must be regarded, if we are to be wise, as a means to an end.

American Locomotive Dipped Into Surplus To Pay Dividends

The action of Paramount-Publix directors in ordering a stock dividend of 2 per cent, or 1/50th of a share of stock in lieu of the usual cash dividend of 62½ cents a share, fulfilled predictions current for some weeks past. The shift to a stock dividend, which is on the basis of recent open market value of the shares, is tantamount to a reduction in the rate of payment if immediate sale of the stock is contemplated, had been discounted market-wise. The move was occasioned by the necessity of conserving cash resources to provide for redemption of stock and for properties but guaranteed as to price.

Canadian Pacific opened at 22 off ? points from the previous close. This decline followed a rally in Monday's late trading on announcement that the road had declared the same dividend as paid three months ago, namely, 31¼ cents. Canadian Pacific faces a poor grain movement this year. Its subsidiaries, including hotels, mining companies and steamship lines, are reported to be showing smaller earnings than a year ago. On yearly payments amounting to $1.25 a share, the stock is selling to yield about 5½ per cent.

The current business and market situation is in many respects precisely the reverse of that which existed in 1929 when peak plant schedules, high stock prices, huge brokers' loans and intense market activity invited wholesale buying of stocks irrespective of the accumulating evidences of overexpansion, topheavy public interest in the market and rising money rates, according to a survey by Standard Statistics. Today, it is pointed out, interest rates are abnormally low, brokers' loans have been cut down to a small fraction of their former heights, there has been a general clearing out of weak speculative accounts and a substantial rate of productive activity has obtained for a sufficient time to create deficits and a deferred demand.

With the current price of the copper metal at a new all time low, there are but few concerns in the industry which can report profits at existing quotations. Contrasted with the prevailing market price of from 7½ to 7¾ cents a pound, a survey has shown that the producing costs of 19 leading copper mining companies range from 7.41 to 11.53 cents a pound, or an average of 9.53 cents.

STOCK MARKET MAKES BRISK RECOVERY

Early 1 to 3-Point Losses Mostly Cancelled and Many Gains Appear

NEW YORK, Aug. 11 (AP)—With the rail shares on the verge of breaking to a new average low level for the bear movement, constructive interests came to the rescue in today's stock market and drove shorts to cover.

The share market recorded brisk advances in the morning concentrated in the rails. The upturn often piled an almost steady advance for more than a week and was the most vigorous since the middle of July.

Early losses largely ranging from 1 to 3 points were mostly cancelled and net advances of about 2 to 4 points recorded in such issues as American Telephone American Can American Tobacco B Consolidated Gas New York Central Southern Pacific United States Steel Sears Roebuck Eastman Case Union Pacific International Business Machines and Allied Chemical.

While the upturn was regarded by most observers as largely technical reflecting an overcrowded short interest the day's grist of news included a few decidedly constructive developments. The improved tone of the wheat market despite the government's crop estimate of 894,000,000 bushels for the United States or 3 per cent above last year's production was distinctly encouraging.

The reduction of the Reichsbank's discount rate to 10 from 15 per cent while confidently forecast yesterday provided further evidence of the passing of the European financial crisis. The Bank of England was believed to have obtained a fair portion of the day's offerings of South African gold in the London market although more than half had already been taken in advance for French account.

Aiding the rail shares from breaking through their June 2 lows as measured by the averages was reward as of decidedly favorable significance by market theorists.

The upturn in the market took the spectacular volatility in surprise and hasty efforts to find a cause resulted in the bringing out of numerous outworn rumors such as the told story that important bullish news was coming from Washington. One financial news ticker reported that the rumor had been revived on the exchange floor that an important development toward modification of prohibition was in prospect.

U. S. TO DEFEND CROP REPORT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(AP)—The Agriculture Department today was prepared to defend its estimate of 15,384,000 bales for the 1931 cotton crop, which has been termed too high by some cotton traders.

Trade estimates were about 1,500,000 bales less on the basis of August 1 conditions. Reports that the government's forecast had been on record by traders also reached the Farm Board. It was made clear that the board was opposed to the large estimate issued Saturday. W. F. Callander of the department's crop reporting board said:

"I am confident that our estimate will be found to be reasonably accurate."

Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas, telegraphed Secretary Hyde yesterday asking that all the records of last Saturday's report be preserved for a thorough investigation. A memorandum has been prepared for the secretary by Callander.

Right to Allow Boost Questioned

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The proposal by railroad commissions of six western states that the Interstate Commerce Commission dismiss the 15 per cent rate increase plea because it is unauthorized to grant such an increase on the showing of a financial emergency alone raises a question which has bothered the commission throughout the hearing.

The mention that there was some doubt in this respect was first made from the bench when Commissioner B. H. Meyer said there was some doubt in his mind as to whether such a showing alone would be sufficient to warrant granting the increase.

German Crisis

New York Curb Market

GERMAN CREDIT KEPT AFLOAT BY LOANS

Finance Ministers Can Do Nothing Decision to Be Made Soon

By MERCER G. BUKEYSER

Mr. Bukeyser

POSITION DIAGNOSED

"The vulnerability of Germany's position is clear. Even at the end of 1929 her external commercial indebtedness was put over [illegible] on long term, the mint parity of the pound is $4.866, and [illegible] on short-term account. This extensive borrowing might have been vindicated eventually if its fruit in the way of an enhanced national output had been sufficient to enable the new capital not only to 'pay for its keep,' but to provide an adequate margin for reparation liabilities. Actually, Germany has not, as yet, been given time to prove her potentialities in this respect.

"Market conditions were moving against her even in 1929, when Wall street was a magnet for the world's surplus funds, and new loans were becoming increasingly difficult to obtain. In 1930, they shrank to small dimensions, and only strenuous efforts to maintain Germany's merchandise exports, coupled with the reduction of her purchases from abroad to a minimum (with an opportune lowering of the earlier annuities under the Young plan) prevented a serious crisis before the year was out.

"In the first half of 1931, capital was leaving, not entering, the country.

Kitty Is Willing to Marry Thad, But He Objects

CHAPTER XL

The moment that I threw the drink in Susie Lawlor's face I realized that, for the first time, I had done something decidedly coarse and cheap.

Chubb Osmund was no fool. He knew that I wasn't myself or I wouldn't have done this. Instantly he started to dance me away, and I got a glimpse of somebody holding Susie back as she tried to reach for me.

Because of the raucous jazz from the orchestra and the crowd on the dance floor, Chubb had me far away in the crowd in no time at all, it seemed.

He steered me over to the entrance to the rest room.

"Get your things, Katie," he said, "and we'll get out in the air for a while, then go to some other place. I'll pay the check and be here to meet you."

I went into the rest room, my face burning with shame.

It was more shame for the almost unforgivable thing I had done than for the snubbing Susie Lawlor had given me.

As I bathed my face and got my things to go, Viola came in. Chubb had found her with Denny Thurston and told them what we planned to do.

Viola didn't make any comments except to say that she would be with me.

And then Susie Lawlor came into the rest room with a Mrs. Walling, one of her society friends I had met at her home. Susie came to try and fix up because the liquor had washed away her make-up and wet her dress.

"Drunken little beast!" Susie cried when she saw me.

"It was a low-down thing for me to do, and I'm sorry," I admitted, frankly enough. "I realize that you have the right to snub anyone, even if that is also unladylike."

"I don't want apologies from anyone like you," she said, and then she proceeded to call me a whole string of vile names. Viola started to shut her up, but I prevented this. When she had finished I was fairly calm.

A FALSE FRIEND

"Because I was innocently mixed up with the Malvern murder I am supposed to be quite beyond the pale of decency, Susie," I said, "and I suppose that is why you cannot lower yourself to associate with me any more——"

"Innocently!" she said with a sneer.

"Just that—and I am not living with an actor—or any other man!"

Susie turned white. I was sure that she didn't want her friend, Mrs. Walling, to know this.

"Prove it!" she said hoarsely.

"I have only your word for it, Susie, and——"

Then I began to cry. I sobbed that I was sorry and ashamed. I was more than I could express, but I had no regrets over Susie Lawlor's change of feeling toward me. If that was the sort of "friend" she and her snobbish class proved to be to former friends in trouble, I was fortunate to know it.

So Viola took me out. We rode around the park for a while and when Chubb spoke of some other place I was glad to go. The rest of the night was happy enough.

But I was not silly enough to take any more drinks. For the first time I had taken altogether too much. It wasn't funny or nice. I was always out for gaiety and fun, not for intoxication and rowdiness.

Once more Chubb Osmund begged me to marry him. He blamed himself for my scene this night, declaring that he had fed me too many drinks and "loaded" some to cheer me up.

I had to tell him again that I wouldn't marry him. As I felt at this time I didn't think I wanted to marry anyone.

VISITS CORA

When we got home Viola made her first comment.

"I'm glad I'm not in Susie Lawlor's social set — they're a lot of cads."

"I wasn't so ladylike myself," I reminded her.

"No, you slopped over for the first time since I have known you; that was just your little human streak—too honest to be covered up with a thin veneer of fake society polish, but at least I know that there's more lady in your little finger than in a million Susie Lawlors." She giggled. I looked at her in surprise.

"What you said about her actor sweetie shocked her friend, Mrs. Walling, and nearly killed Susie. To think she could be so narrow and — coty after the good friends you two have been!"

At any rate, I apologized and said I was sorry, and it was true, I reminded her.

Sunday I visited my sister Cora. I told her the entire story. Naturally it amazed her, but if I expected a lot of sympathy and comfort from her I was certainly mistaken.

"The next time you won't be so fortunate," she said.

"As if there would ever be a next time!" I protested.

"There is sure to be if you don't come down to earth and realize that this life of jazz and dancing, necking parties and night clubs, booze and weekend revels is neither natural nor right."

I wouldn't argue with her because Cora seemed so entirely different, she couldn't understand the thrill in going out on parties, the kick to be had out of starting with a dinner, a show and ending with a night club—hours of continuous gaiety and laughter. She could live along in her hum-drum existence, if she wanted to call it living. As for myself, I preferred to be a live one.

So we parted good friends — we couldn't be anything else — and I know she spoke the truth when she said her good husband had promised to spend all he had to save me at the time she believed I would be tried for the murder of Forrest Malvern.

The lively season came on again. I began to meet Thad Parsons and he was as sweet to me and as jolly as ever. Only once did he mention the Malvern affair.

SEES THAD OFTEN

Luck was with you, Katie," he said, "and you deserved it."

Yes, I suppose a lot of innocent people often get into terrible trouble all through fate of circumstances," I agreed.

"They can't tie you, my dear," he answered, and laughed.

Another fashion show came on and we were as busy as could be. Molly Parsons got work with Mrs. Miers, finally. Not as a model. She was beyond that. But she worked in the establishment and now and then irritated me with her preaching.

"Cut it out," she would say, "there's nothing to it—the more you play around, the deeper you get, look at me!"

Once I said, "Oh, let up, Molly—you know that there's a right way and a wrong way to play."

"Sure I know, and you get so you don't see the difference."

As if that bothered me any. Thad Parsons was becoming attentive again. I had once said that after the way he threw me down for that worthless Arline Sargent I would never marry him, but I was beginning to change my mind. Thad was so sweet to me. I knew that he would always keep me in luxury if I married him.

Poor Chubb Osmund finally gave up all idea that I might some day marry him. He saw me with Thad more and more.

Even Viola agreed that I was silly to lose such an opportunity. She always maintained that I should have married Thad after he divorced Arline and when he was so anxious for me to say the word.

Viola still went around with her English friend, who was decidedly swanky, in his way. She played around with Denny too, and a few others of our friends who were jolly, good spenders and always gentlemanly. But many were the times she would break some date on short notice to go out with Jack Barnes. He was one of the Miers customers from Cleveland and owned a store there. Jack wasn't anything to write home about, so far as I could see, but Viola seemed crazy about him.

On the last night of our spring fashion show, the second since the awful Malvern affair, Thad Parsons had almost become my shadow.

A SURPRISING REMARK

The last thing I wore on exhibition was a wonderful evening gown. Thad begged me to go out with him after I was through and Mrs. Miers told me to go ahead and wear the gown, because we were going to one of the smartest uptown night clubs in the city.

Thad was unusually sweet that night.

"Why can't we be as we used to be, dearest," he asked, "just the two of us, looking ahead to real happiness?"

"There seems to be no reason," I admitted.

"Then it's agreed?"

"It's agreed, Thad."

He kissed me and held me in his arms as we rode home in the early hours. It was like the old days.

"We will start planning our love nest, sweetness," he whispered as the car stopped at my door.

"And the first thing will be the little old marriage certificate, Thad. I—I'm sorry I refused to marry you when you begged me, right after your divorce, but now I am sure."

"Marriage certificate?" There was surprise in his voice.

"Don't tease—you know it's still being done, this getting married." I laughed and gave him a little kiss.

"But things are different, Kitty, you know that as well as myself."

The way he said it sent cold chills over me.

"How different, Thad?"

"Well—well, sweetness, you cannot expect me to marry you —now!"

(What is Kitty's answer to Thad? Read tomorrow's stirring installment.)

DAILY SHORT STORY

'Atchoo'

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Hay Fever Instrumental in Unusual Romance

"'Atchoo!"

It was a politely smothered little sneeze, from the patrician nose of little Miss Daggert, who was sitting back of the bamboo screen on the veranda of the bungalow she had rented for the summer.

Across the lawn was another bungalow and another bamboo screened veranda.

Little Miss Daggert heard the rustle of a newspaper, the scrape of masculine feet and now and then she saw a drift of blue smoke—cigar smoke, she correctly guessed.

"'Atchoo!" sneezed little Miss Daggert again. This time it came so suddenly that she couldn't quite smother it.

And then, out of the stillness of the dusk:

"Ha-ha-ha'tchoo!"

It was no delicately smothered little sneeze, it was a whooping big sneeze—almost too loud to be genuine.

Miss Daggert's cheeks reddened slightly and her eyes glowed angrily.

It was a most impudent thing to do, to mock her because she had sneezed!

She twisted in her chair and stared through the dusk. She could just make out, dimly, the form of a man back on the screen. The man, she could see, was evidently wearing white flannels.

It was too early for any evening dampness to appear and for days it had been hot and dusty. Even a slight breeze stirred the leaves and the grass blades and swirled tiny bits of dust up from the garage driveway and across the little patch of field back of the long row of bungalows at this end of Silver Lake.

GIRL ANNOYED

The breeze seemed to irritate little Miss Daggert, or something did, for suddenly came another:

"'Atchoooooo!"

This was a long, sharp, staccato sort of sneeze and had come and gone before Miss Daggert could get her handkerchief to her nose.

Almost instantly came across from the other bungalow another sneeze.

Miss Daggert got up and went inside. She closed the door with a slam. How anyone could be so crass, such a crude person as to think there was anything clever or amusing in imitating a person's sneeze was quite beyond her.

The next day Miss Daggert went down to the community store and postoffice to arrange for a mail box and find out when the provision man called with his goods.

REMEMBERS BROTHER

Mr. Perkins, who owned that end of the lake and the forty or more bungalows and the store and was postmaster and general poobah of the locality, greeted little Miss Daggert with a smile. He knew about her. He knew who the Daggerts were and all about their immense fortune.

"Ah, yes, Miss Daggert, you have Woodbine," he said.

That was the name of the bungalow she had rented.

"Yes, Mr. Perkins."

"Then your mail will be in that box, marked 'Woodbine'—ah, good morning, Mr. Nickerson—Mr. Nickerson, this is Miss Daggert."

Miss Daggert nodded, a bit bashfully. Mr. Nickerson smiled genially. "If I wore a hat I would salute you, Miss Daggert, but we seldom wear them here. Have you been here before?"

"Once, when I was a small girl, Mr. Nickerson."

"Well, well! You aren't such a whopping big girl now. I remember your brother. He used to come up here every summer."

"Oh, yes. I was living in Italy then. My brother is in the diplomatic service now, and stationed in Egypt, so he can scarcely get up to Silver Lake."

"If Perkins here would sell us a few inches of land I'd buy, but he won't do it," Nickerson said.

Perkins grinned.

"I may sell to a few old-timers like you. By the way, Miss Daggert, Mr. Nickerson is your neighbor on the right," Perkins said.

Little Miss Daggert stiffened instantly.

So this was the boor who had aped her last night—who had thought it something humorous to mock her because she had sneezed.

"Indeed," said Miss Daggert.

She nodded coldly and walked out.

"Queer little dame," Nickerson said.

"Of course you do—it's a freak of human nature—big men like tiny women and big Amazons of women pick out little chaps for their husbands—and Miss Daggert is pretty as a picture."

They talked of something else then and Miss Daggert walked sedately down the road to the lake shore and along the trim path to the cottage she had leased for the season.

This man Nickerson now, she was thinking, was really striking. Big, handsome, jolly—it was too bad that he was so crass, such a bore—only an ignoramus would mock a poor woman with hay fever. If he were intelligent, he would be just the sort of man she could really love.

However, Miss Daggert was something of a philosopher. If things were, they were. If they were not, why bother? Just the same, she liked his cheerful smile, his habit of looking right at you, and she liked his healthy color and his artistic hands. It was simply too bad that he had to be lacking in refinement.

Helen's married sister wrote to her that Hemmingway Osmund was going to Silver Lake just because she was there.

Helen Daggert did not thrill very much, nor was she displeased. Hemmingway had been besieging her for some years to marry him. Helen had about decided that perhaps it might be just as well. Hemmingway was a nice chap, well brought up, fairly well off and highly educated.

She mused over it.

HELEN IS FURIOUS

Nature was a queer force. Here was this clever, well educated, gentlemanly Hemmingway Osmund, who was about 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighed around 135. Helen didn't care so much for small men.

And here was this Jack Nickerson, almost Adonis — a handsome man, a cheerful, healthy, pleasing appearing man—and he was impossible—he didn't know anything smarter to do than to mock a poor young woman who suffered with hay fever!

Hemmingway Osmund was all set to win the pretty and the wealthy little Helen Daggert this trip. He was even then en route to Silver Lake, and would reach there the next evening.

The air was somewhat heavy. Dark clouds in the east betokened rain, and Helen Daggert was thankful, for the rain would make wet and soggy the irritating pollens from ragweed, goldenrod and other things that, it was popularly believed, caused hay fever.

Little gusts of wind swirled dust and plant pollens about.

"'Atchoo!" sneezed Helen Daggert.

She wondered if the boor across the way would ape her. He did not. She sneezed again, this time more shrilly. It annoyed her that she couldn't stifle these sneezes.

"Hu—hu—hutchoo!" came right after her second sneeze.

Helen Daggert was furious again.

The next evening it was even worse. The rain had not arrived. It had passed around the lake. The wind stirred up things through the day and Helen was miserable. It didn't matter where she went, this hay fever followed her all through August.

Three times this evening Jack Nickerson aped her when she sneezed.

Then someone bounded up the steps to Nickerson's bungalow and said, "Greetings—Helen—greetings—this is Hemmingway."

"What the blue blazes you got in your hand, young feller," bellowed Jack Nickerson, "and who the devil is Helen?"

Helen Daggert gasped. It was Hemmingway, come to the wrong cottage.

"Hey—you darn fool—get out of here with that dam' goldenrod and stuff. I've got hay fever bad enough without having any young sap bring a half bushel of pollen right under my nose."

"I am looking for Miss Daggert," said Hemmingway, backing away.

"Oh, well, she lives next door and say, I'd advise——"

But Hemmingway Osmund was tripping straight across the lawn. He rushed up on the veranda.

"Helen, dear—"

"Hemmingway Osmund," Helen cried, clearly and loudly, "how dare you bring that stuff here when you know I suffer from hay fever every Summer!"

"Aw, come now, Helen, that's just superstition—golden rod never causes——"

"Take it away—atchoo! Take it away, Hemmingway—and come and see me—atchoo—tomorrow—please!"

Hemmingway departed. Helen Daggert marched across the lawn.

"Mr. Nickerson, I owe you an apol—atchoo—gy. I thought you were mimicking me at sneezing. I didn't—atchoo—know you had hay—ug—ug—atchoo—"

HEMMINGWAY PROPOSES

"Sure I have it, I—hu—hu—hatchoo—Miss Daggert."

They sat on the steps and discussed hay fever, between sneezes, for several hours.

When Hemmingway called the next day and proposed Helen said, "Really, Hemmingway, I'm sorry—I mean, that you feel that you want to marry me—but you see I'm engaged to a Mr. Nickerson—he lives over there——"

"That uncouth brute? I'm surprised, Helen."

"So am I, happily surprised. Better stay for the wedding. We're going to be married next week, Hemmingway—he's—atchoo—a lovely—atchoo—man!"

But Hemmingway was already down the walk and going through the gate.

The Public Prosecutor

Calls the District Attorney's Attention to Some of the Neglected Duties of the District Attorney

In announcing his candidacy for District Attorney, Ralph H. Smith [illegible] has put into words some thoughts [illegible] prosecutor that have doubtless [illegible] voters.

Should there be some Commonwealth [illegible] should [illegible] made [illegible] but should [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] Smith means [illegible] the [illegible] the Department [illegible] reference [illegible]

[illegible] gaudy waste has now [illegible] that contracts were being [illegible] the law. Park [illegible]

The [illegible] newspapers [illegible] another and day after day for weeks [illegible] to the public in prominently displayed articles. Park was silent, but moved, and when asked by a reporter what he thought about it had the impudence to feign [illegible] of the matter. He paid no attention to newspaper articles [illegible].

It took the efforts of the Citizens' Committee, composed of prominent business men, and the League of Women Voters to force [illegible].

Under Smith's conception of the duties of the office the District Attorney would have started his own investigation as soon as [illegible] accusation had been published.

Smith said [illegible] some worthwhile things to say in regard to racketeering. He drew attention to the prevalence of organized commercialized crime—gambling, slot machines, "numbers" [illegible], and the like—and the blackmail, bribery and gangster methods that inevitably go along with these rackets. [illegible]

"What the average man knows the District Attorneys through his county detectives should be able to discover. The knowledge thus acquired should result in positive action. Not once has the present District Attorneys effectively taken the initiative against the forces of organized crime."

The gangster and the racketeer thrive in Allegheny County, as Smith says, because they have the support of machine politicians, who place political expediency above public welfare.

The public is coming to realize this, and it may be that the Republican machine will be held to account in the approaching election. In that case the machine's support of Park may prove a handicap to him rather than an advantage.

Death of A. A. Brasley

A Heavy Loss Is Suffered in the Passing of the Sun-Telegraph's Advertising Director.

The untimely death of Alexander A. Brasley, advertising director of the Sun-Telegraph, is a grievous loss—a loss to this newspaper and to the business world as well as to his family, relatives and friends.

Mr. Brasley was estimable as a man, tireless and exceptionally competent as a newspaper worker.

An illustration of his ability may be found in the fact that, thanks largely to his energy and keenness, the Sun-Telegraph last month gained 116,501 lines in total display advertising over the same month of last year—a fact which Mr. Brasley himself set forth in an advertisement that appeared in the paper carrying the announcement of his death.

In his self-sacrificing service, his consideration for others and the vigor and alertness of his mind "Al" Brasley exemplified the Hearst spirit. His fine achievements will not soon be forgotten.

Abuse of Authority

City Council Should Call a Halt on Overruling the Zoning Board and Planning Commission.

Promoters of a baseball park which it is proposed to establish on Bedford avenue property lying between the Municipal Hospital and the Lincoln Memorial Cemetery are said to have received assurances from councilmen that Council will authorize the project—this in the face of the fact that the Board of Adjustment has ruled against it and the City Planning Commission has upheld the board's decision.

A small field lying between a hospital and a cemetery is obviously an improper place for professional ball games attracting crowds of noisy "fans."

But even if the desirability of saving sick people and funeral parties from annoyance did not enter into the matter Council would still be doing an unwise thing in overruling the two boards by changing the zoning classification of the property.

The Board of Adjustment and the Planning Commission know what sections of the city are best adapted for residences and what for business; they know what promotes civic beauty and what improves property values. Council should be very slow to interfere with their decisions, and ought never to interfere for political reasons.

Donation to Consultation Clinics Is a Philanthropy That Will Meet With General Approval.

The high cost of medical treatment is one of the grave problems of the day. To people in modest circumstances sickness is a great misfortune not only in itself but also because of its drain on financial resources.

Whatever tends to ease the strain is therefore to be welcomed.

The Buhl Foundation announces a new gift—a donation of $49,300 to the Pittsburgh Diagnostic and Consultation Clinic, to permit it to enlarge the scope of its work. The clinic has no counterpart elsewhere. It aims to place a complete clinical and consultative service within reach of families of average means.

This is a philanthropy that will meet with general approval.

Who Won The War?

Still 'On the Spot'

This Cartoon Gets Better Every Day.

ON THE SPOT—NELSON HARDING'S FAMOUS CONCEPTION OF GANG RULE

This cartoon, published in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph nearly a year ago, has been imitated by scores of native and foreign cartoonists in search of original ideas to illustrate America's era of crime.

Imitation being flattery, Mr. Nelson Harding, who drew it, should feel highly flattered. Hardly a week passes that it does not reappear in some quarter of the world, slightly disguised but still recognizable.

Unlike most cartoons, this one improves with age. Timely as it was in 1930, you agree that it is even more timely today.

Uncle Sam is still on the spot. In the year past he has been shot as full of holes as "Legs" Diamond. Criminals have grown more daring and more deadly. Innocent persons—including little children—have been murdered in the streets. Yet there is no hint from our chair warming officeholders, from President to dogcatcher, that anything can be done about it.

On all sides you hear pious protestations that crime must be checked, but you see no ACTION. The federal government is too busy settling the affairs of Europe to hear the noise of automatics and sawed-off shotguns at home. State and city authorities talk, but politics talk louder.

If Theodore Roosevelt were alive and in office, this cartoon would never have been drawn. But there are no Theodore Rooseveltses any more, and poor old Uncle Sam—a docile creature—will stay on the spot a while longer.

All things considered, that is where Uncle Sam deserves to be. Nobody put him there but himself, and nobody but himself can put him off.

He makes a fine target, let us say that for him.

It is now believed that the making of glass must be attributed to the Egyptians rather than to the Phoenicians, as formerly thought. It seems certain that at a very early date glass-making on a large scale flourished in Egypt. Doubtless these were artificial gems, indicating that the making of paste jewelry runs back into remote antiquity. There are records to show that artificial pearls were made of glass in these early times, and formed an important article of commerce. The remains of glass work have been discovered, and these date back from the eighteenth dynasty. ANCIENT CHEMISTRY

By Archibald Henderson

Chemistry as an individual science has a history of only seventy-five centuries or less. But chemical operations, [illegible] of a highly elaborated nature, were performed in days of early antiquity. Working in metal and glass was an important industry among the Egyptians, Sumerians and the Semites. And there is no doubt that they watched, with characteristic high degree of accuracy.

Take Egypt, for example, as described by H. Moyer in his Makers of Chemistry. Gold was used to a great extent for ornamentation and as settings for jewels. Sufficient sand was placed in a [illegible] bag made of fleece with the woolly side inwards; water was then added and the bag vigorously shaken by two men. When the water was poured off the earthy particles were carried away, leaving the heavier particles of gold adhering to the fleece. LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The Merritts can't understand what has come over young Ross. Particularly Dad Merritt.

For years Dad Merritt has gone around boasting about how he'd made a pal of his son and advising other fathers to do likewise. According to him, he knew every thought that went through the boy's head. Ross wouldn't dream of doing a thing without consulting him. More like two brothers than a father and son, they were. Have trouble like other fathers do? Not he! He and his boy were chums!

Then last fall Ross entered Hi and now Dad Merritt is up against it himself . . . up against that mysterious, almost hostile strangeness which arises between parents and adolescent youngsters. And he doesn't know what to make of it. What has come over the boy? Why has he shut up like a clam? Why should he want to go off by himself or with other half-baked young sprouts? Why should he throw a fit of sulks if Dad tries to question him or advise him?

What HAS come over the boy? Nothing abnormal. Something most natural and inevitable. Life has come over the boy. His OWN life. He is moving out of his father's life and his mother's life into his own life. He is no longer leaning on their experience—he is seeking his own.

"But I've had all the experiences he'll have," protests Dad Merritt, "and I can guide him."

Try and tell that to Youth! Youth doesn't want your experience, doesn't trust it. Maybe you think you have made a glorious success of your life but Youth has its doubts. Maybe, too, you've made as much of a success as any one can. But Youth won't believe it. Youth must discover that for itself.

Erich Maria Remarque has a wise word on this subject in his new novel, "THE ROAD BACK" . . . words which will make most parents plenty mad.

Youth is sharp-sighted and incorruptible. It hangs together and presents an impenetrable front against the grownups. It is not sentimental: one may approach it but one cannot enter into it. Who has once been evicted from that paradise can never get back. There is a law of the years . . . Educationalists who think they can understand the young are enthusiasts. Youth does not want to be understood; it wants to be let alone. It preserves itself immune against the insidious bacillus of being understood . . . We may feel with youth, but youth does not feel with us. That is its salvation."

That is its salvation. It cannot feel the fear that has crept over our old courage . . . the ignoble compromise that has degraded our old hunger . . . the deceit and evasions that have darkened our old sense of honor . . . the grief and remorse and indifference that have dulled the sharp edge of our delight. Youth cannot feel these things, thank God! And so Youth takes up the old fight, as once we took it up—fearless, hopeful, with no thought of failure. And slowly but surely, generation after generation, the line advances.

Help that line advance! Don't get in its way with your timidity, your selfishness and egotism. Let Youth have its chance—don't try to hold it by your side. Be admirable in yourself—set a good example. That is actually the only service you can render youth. For the rest: HANDS OFF!

Text for Today

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.—James, 1:12.

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

DEAUVILLE, Aug. 11.—One of those fiercely put-put-putting motor boats scooted us from Havre across the harbor to Deauville this morning in 45 minutes. By auto it is 50 miles. Most of the way it was a choking fog but finally we emerged into a fairyland vista of white cliffs, silver sand and rose clad villas.

Deauville is a Normandy coast resort where the big idea is to be seen. A day is a succession of horseback riding, tennis, golf bathing, lunching at Ciro's, polo, pigeon shooting and gambling at the Casino at night. It has the prop look of a motion picture.

At the moment the season is in full swing and the beach and promenade are rainbowish with bathing costumes and pajamas. Le Toquet has lured many of Deauville's faithful and the rivalry between them is keen. As a result rate cutting at hotels is giving the sucker a slight break.

Having left Havre at 6:45 a. m. without breakfast we went directly to the Normandy Hotel, an autumnal brown "picture" flaming with autumn, for a bite. At a nearby table sat a group of young men in peach-toned pajamas. I wondered if they had just got up or were just going to bed.

While waiting for the food and I think the waiter slipped off to Paris for it, I was almost tempted to dig out the red and yellow pajamas I picked up at a Galeries Lafayette sale, send them over to the young sprigs with a note: "Match these, messieurs!"

The irritation of a long wait for breakfast vanished with its arrival. It was the best I ever ate on the continent, and not only that, I was introduced socially to a new fangled melon spoon, a sort of miniature post hole digger that brought out the melon in delicious cubes.

The melon itself was snuggled in a mountain of ice in a silver dish of vari-colored rose buds. With the eggs came a cup in frosted Lalique and a silver gadget for snipping off egg ends so one might eat them out of the shell.

One sees on the streets of Deauville more jewelry than may be seen in the windows of the jewelry establishments along the entire Rue de la Paix. Peggy Joyce here, fully bediamonded, would be just another tourist. I saw pendants that, as Will Hogg might say, "would stoop a cow." And along La Plage Fleurie was a lady in a snip of a bathing suit whose arms were covered to elbows in jeweled bracelets.

During a before-luncheon motor spin I saw a polo player with a full crop of whiskers. He was indulging morning practice and the way his foliage was buzzing in the breeze was comical, no end. Also what-ho! And frightfully jolly.

Signing a hotel register in France requires more than name and home city. They give you a slip upon which you must tell all age, birthplace, date of birth, occupation, passport number, how long you expect to remain, etc., etc. A transcript goes to the prefect of police. Deauville, because of its pleasure-loving patronage, is a mecca for gentlemen of flexible morals and ladies of easy virtues. Consequently, register blanks are particularly searching. As I was remaining only until midnight, when the prefect receives the slips, I decided to give him a surprise. After occupation I put "American gangster." Answering "Object of visit," I wrote "Assassination of the Chief of Police." Then I signed "Courtney Ryley Cooper" and a "strange woman, Idaho Springs, Colorado" which will be dandy for the real Coopers when they arrive later this season.

The Casino in the moonlight with clipped hedges, flower starred terraces and gleaming white walks is an enticing picture. It is a one-storied structure with a circular room at each end, suggesting a dumbell. Inside is the usual gaiety of lights of every gambling house. I am told that when play lags in European casinos lights are increased. They stimulate play. The usual feverish crowd, too, was there—eager, taut, astonishingly rude.

My luck at gambling over here is excellent had I the sense to quit. But only once after a winning number did I romp off with my winnings. Tonight I could have paid my boat fare home had I taken my wife's advice. But I became a plunger and all of it vanished with more. Just one of the bright boys who help to put the "dough" in Deauville!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Are you permitting your periods of mental depression to lengthen?

As your spirits sag, you become physically sluggish except the part of your brain which outlines drab discouragement.

Perhaps you have reached the stage where you positively dislike the one who can smile or the one with joy in his voice, brightness in his eyes and a general cheerfulness in his expression.

If this is your state you have gone a long way in the wrong direction.

You may have had many troubles and still they keep coming.

But thousands of others of whom you have no such idea are experiencing trying times as hard for them to bear.

Snap out of your condition.

Why allow it to gain an increasingly strong hold over you?

Take a brace, get hold of yourself.

Despite your troubles and those of many others, this is a great old world and brighter days are in store if you will look up, not down.

If you don't change, you will realize when brightness returns.
